FIRST COMMUNITY BANCORP ANNOUNCES PLANS TO CONSOLIDATE SUBSIDIARIES INTO SINGLE BANK

First National Bank and Pacific Western National Bank to Become

Pacific Western Bank

Pacific Western Bank to Become California State-Chartered Bank

Pacific Western to be Headquartered in San Diego, CA

Rancho Santa Fe, California . . . First Community Bancorp (Nasdaq: FCBP) announced today that it is implementing a plan of consolidation and conversion to merge its two wholly-owned banking subsidiaries, Pacific Western National Bank and First National Bank, into a single entity to be named Pacific Western Bank. As part of the plan of consolidation, Pacific Western National Bank filed an application with the California Department of Financial Institutions on August 7, 2006 to convert from a national banking charter to a state-chartered bank under the name of Pacific Western Bank. Pacific Western also filed a notice with Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco to withdraw from membership in the Federal Reserve System and become a nonmember bank at the time of its conversion.

Under the plan of consolidation and conversion, it is anticipated that immediately following the completion of First Community's previously announced acquisition of Community Bancorp and the merger of Community National Bank into First National Bank, First National Bank will merge into Pacific Western Bank. In connection therewith, Pacific Western and First National filed an application with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the California Department of Financial Institutions to approve the merger of First National Bank into Pacific Western Bank, following Pacific Western's conversion to a state-chartered bank and the completion of the merger with Community National Bank.

Matt Wagner, President and CEO of First Community Bancorp, stated, "Our plan of consolidation and conversion is designed to enhance opportunities for our customers, and to maximize the franchise value we have created with our subsidiaries across Southern California. In consolidating First National into Pacific Western after completion of the Community Bancorp acquisition, the new Pacific Western Bank will have a substantial presence in the vibrant markets of Southern California, with a footprint of nearly 70 branches throughout Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego Counties. As a single bank, with more locations and higher lending limits, we will enhance our position as the community bank of choice for small and medium-sized businesses throughout Southern California.

Mr. Wagner continued, "We decided to convert to a state-chartered bank based on our belief that as a community bank, the state banking system is better positioned to address the needs of community banks, now and in the future. Additionally, as a state-chartered bank we expect to reduce expenses associated with regulatory examinations.

Management Structure to Change

First Community also announced that following completion of the conversion of Pacific Western Bank and the merger of First National into Pacific Western Bank, Michael J. Perdue, President and CEO of Community Bancorp, will become President of First Community Bancorp. Matt Wagner, President and CEO of First Community, will remain chief executive. Additionally, Mr. Wagner will be named Chairman and CEO of Pacific Western Bank and Mr. Perdue will become President of Pacific Western and join its board of directors. Robert M. Borgman, President and CEO of First National Bank, will also join the board of Pacific Western Bank after the merger with First National is completed.

Mike Perdue commented, "The new consolidated Pacific Western Bank will be one of the premier community banking franchises in California. Customers will have access to an even larger branch system and further increased lending capacity than they would have had under the merger of First National and Community National Bank alone. Pacific Western Bank will be the largest bank based in San Diego and will continue to provide all of the banking products and great service customers have come to expect from First National Bank and Community National Bank.

Further Strengthening Ties with San Diego

As part of the plan of consolidation and conversion, both First Community and Pacific Western Bank will move their headquarters to 401 West A Street in San Diego, California, and Mike Perdue, as President of Pacific Western, will be headquartered in San Diego. Commented Mr. Wagner, "San Diego County is where we began and has always been the location of First Community's headquarters. By moving both the headquarters of the new Pacific Western Bank and the holding company to downtown San Diego itself, we are making the strongest possible statement that we are a San Diego bank. We are proud to be in San Diego and look forward to supporting its business community with the services a bank with $5.5 billion in assets has to offer.

Timing for Conversion of Pacific Western and Merger of First National into Pacific Western

The application for the conversion of Pacific Western to a state-chartered nonmember bank is subject to state and federal regulatory approval. First Community currently expects to receive approval for Pacific Western to convert to a state-chartered nonmember bank, and complete the conversion of Pacific Western into a state-chartered nonmember bank, in the fourth quarter of 2006. The merger of First National Bank into state-chartered Pacific Western Bank is scheduled to occur immediately following the completion of First Community's acquisition of Community Bancorp, which is currently scheduled to be completed in the fourth quarter of 2006. Under First Community's plan of consolidation and conversion, the consummation of the Community Bancorp acquisition would follow the receipt of regulatory approval and expiration of any waiting periods for the merger of First National Bank into Pacific Western Bank. Immediately following the merger of Community National Bank into First National Bank, First National would then merge into Pacific Western. As a result, Community National Bank customers would only need to undergo a single bank conversion and would become Pacific Western Bank customers upon completion of the conversion. In July 2006, First Community received the approval of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency to merge Community National Bank into First National Bank.
