Results of the early settlement offer

Acceptances under the early settlement offer of 10.8%

Harmony to commence the subsequent offer with 30.9% of Gold Fields

On 18 October 2004, Harmony announced the terms of a proposed merger between Harmony and Gold Fields offering 1.275 new Harmony shares for each Gold Fields share, representing a premium of approximately 29%* and an implied price to net present value multiple for Gold Fields of 2.4x, a substantial premium to Gold Fields peer group. The proposed merger was structured on the basis of an early settlement offer for up to 34.9% of Gold Fields with a subsequent offer for the balance of Gold Fields' entire issued share capital.

Harmony is pleased to announce that as at 12.00 p.m. (South African time) on 26 November 2004, the closing date of the early settlement offer, valid acceptances of the early settlement offer had been received in respect of a total of 53 392 108 Gold Fields shares representing approximately 10.8% of the entire issued share capital of Gold Fields. Settlement of the consideration due under the early settlement offer in respect of valid acceptances received on or before the closing date will be despatched as soon as possible and, in any event, by no later than Friday, 3 December 2004.

In addition, as previously announced, Harmony has received an irrevocable undertaking from Norilsk to accept the subsequent offer in respect of 98 467 758 Gold Fields shares, representing approximately 20.03% of the entire issued share capital of Gold Fields.

Accordingly, Harmony now either owns, has received valid acceptances of the early settlement offer or has an irrevocable undertaking to accept the subsequent offer in respect of a total of 151 859 866 Gold Fields shares representing approximately 30.9% of the entire issued share capital of Gold Fields.

Harmony is pleased with the support of its proposed merger by Gold Fields shareholders. Harmony believes that a starting position of 30.9% represents a strong platform for the subsequent offer. In addition, a significant number of Gold Fields' shareholders who did not tender or only partially tendered into the early settlement offer have indicated their support for the proposed merger, stating their preference to accept the subsequent offer.

Reasons fed back by a number of Gold Fields' shareholders to Harmony for waiting to accept the subsequent offer, aside from it being common practice, include the fact that Gold Fields' management has been offering Gold Fields' shareholders a number of potential inducements to refrain from tendering their shares. To Harmony's knowledge, these have included, inter alia:

a specific buy-back by Gold Fields of Norilsk's 20% holding in Gold Fields at a 15% premium to Harmony's offers, which would require the approval by way of a special resolution of Gold Fields' shareholders in general meeting, at which Norilsk will be precluded from voting on the matter;

a potential white knight making an offer for the whole of Gold Fields;

the potential sale of all or certain of Gold Fields' international assets;

the potential unbundling of certain of Gold Fields' South African assets; and the revision of the terms of the proposed transaction between Gold Fields and IAMGold to attempt to address the inequality of the previous agreement by Gold Fields' management.

Harmony believes that some of these are not capable of being implemented, especially in a manner that would be considered attractive to Gold Fields' shareholders and clearly a number of these proposed options are also mutually exclusive and contradictory. To take one example, the sale of production ounces for cash, especially in a firesale environment, to raise cash to buy out a single shareholder at a substantial premium is unlikely to be in the best interests of all of Gold Fields' shareholders or to meet with the approval of those shareholders.

Harmony awaits evidence that the Gold Fields' board has a coherent strategy in place to deliver on any of these promises in a manner that is in the best interests of all of its shareholders, now including Harmony. Harmony will watch the outcome with interest.

The first test of Gold Fields' shareholders' belief in the Gold Fields' board and management and their strategy will come on 7 December 2004, when Gold Fields' shareholders vote on the proposed IAMGold transaction. Harmony is of the strong view that a board that has a major strategic move rejected by its own shareholders should consider whether it continues to have the support and confidence of its shareholders. Harmony is encouraged by the substantial opposition to the proposed IAMGold transaction which had been expressed during meetings that Harmony has held with Gold Fields' shareholders. Harmony considers that Gold Fields' management has already positioned itself for a vote of no confidence in this major element of its strategy.

At the heart of Harmony's proposal is what it believes will be the creation of a highly profitable South African champion that is able to compete internationally and is positioned to become the leading global gold miner. Harmony is convinced that, by applying Harmony's superior and proven operational expertise and efficiency to Gold Fields' assets, Harmony will build an exciting platform which would create value for all shareholders. From the outset the enlarged group would be the largest gold mining company in terms of production, reserves and resources. Building on this Harmony is committed to also becoming the most efficient and valuable gold miner worldwide.

Harmony has been able to build a substantial, sustainable gold mining business out of mines that were discarded as unprofitable by its competitors, including Gold Fields. Harmony attributes its success to concentrating on basic management principles known as the Harmony Way, which include a strong focus on cost control and a flat, decentralised management structure that empowers the people on the ground. Given Harmony's proven track record in delivering cost savings, Harmony is confident that, following completion of the proposed merger, Harmony can achieve sustainable annual cost savings of at least R1 billion, or 15% of Gold Fields' South African cost base.

After initially attacking Harmony's analysis as unrealistic, Gold Fields' estimates of potential cost savings are creeping up towards the low end of what Harmony believes is achievable by applying the Harmony Way, an implicit acceptance of the cost savings opportunities achievable under Harmony's management. Furthermore, Harmony questions whether Gold Fields' management is able to deliver even this lower amount, given its poor performance on cost management to date. On 28 October 2004, Ian Cockerill confirmed: "A desire to cut costs has always been a part of the Gold Fields strategy, but the desire to do something and the ability to deliver can often be two entirely different things."

In its analysis of potential cost savings, Harmony is fortunate to be able to make direct comparisons in respect of the cost levels of assets acquired from Gold Fields. For instance, in relation to Evander, Harmony has achieved total cost savings of some 33%. In fact, if Gold Fields still owned Evander today, with Harmony's cost structure, Harmony estimates that Evander would be Gold Fields' most profitable underground operation by operating margin.

Harmony believes that savings of this magnitude would unlock a market value of at least R17 billion. In addition, due to the current uncertainty in the market, Harmony is trading at a substantial discount to its fundamental value, with a price to net present value multiple of only 1.3x. As certainty returns, Harmony expects this discount to correct itself, further increasing the value inherent in the proposed merger. Following completion of the proposed merger, the enlarged group would be the world's largest gold mining company in terms of production, reserves and resources, in Harmony's view a must have investment with substantial index weightings.

Harmony initiated a strong Rand restructuring process some six months ago, which involved closing down unprofitable operations and streamlining the work force. This restructuring process has now been completed and some 83% of Harmony operations are profitable with only a marginal reduction in production. Harmony's ore reserves are strong and demonstrate little sensitivity to a lower gold price. Harmony believes that it is now optimally positioned to face a sustained strong Rand/Dollar exchange rate.

We are delighted that we will be starting the subsequent offer with 30.9% of Gold Fields' shares behind us and consider that this provides strong impetus for the ultimate success of the proposed merger. We are further encouraged by the feedback that we have received from Gold Fields' shareholders who have indicated their ultimate belief in the value proposition that Harmony is offering and their support for the proposed merger. In addition, a significant number of Gold Fields' shareholders have expressed to Harmony their recognition that the proposed IAMGold transaction, which represents the major pillar of Gold Fields' management's strategy is value destructive and not in the best interest of Gold Fields and its shareholders. Now that Gold Fields' management is reaching the end of its largely unsuccessful attempts to frustrate the proposed merger through a series of expensive and technical legal challenges, we look forward to arguing Harmony's compelling value proposition based on fundamentals with the confidence that the various contradictory promises made by Gold Fields' management will be revealed as both value destructive and ultimately incapable of implementation in a manner that is either to the benefit of or likely to meet with the approval of Gold Fields' shareholders. said Harmony CE Bernard Swanepoel.

THE SUBSEQUENT OFFER

As set out in the circular to Gold Fields' shareholders dated 20 October 2004, Harmony irrevocably undertook to make an the subsequent offer on the same terms as the early settlement offer for the balance of the issued share capital of Gold Fields not already acquired by Harmony under the early settlement offer. Accordingly, Harmony will commence the subsequent offer and will shortly post to Gold Fields' shareholders a supplementary document containing the terms and conditions of the subsequent offer.

* the 29% premium is calculated by comparing the closing Harmony share price on 14 October 2004 to the average daily volume weighted average price of Gold Fields shares on the JSE for the 30 business days ending on 14 October 2004, the last practicable date in accordance with the JSE Listings Requirements prior to the announcement of the proposed merger.
